Largest security company in Midwest partners with former FBI, CIA and Israeli security agents to strengthen offerings
Strategic partnerships offer risk assessment, threat mitigation and education

ST. PAUL — American Security LLC announces strategic partnerships with Rozin Security Consulting LLC and Pierce-Weber Partnership LLC, to enhance its physical security offerings to include a focus on proactive risk assessment and anti-terrorism training as well as threat mitigation, education and security awareness.

“The landscape of physical security is evolving,” says Steven J. Klein, President and Chief Operating Officer of American Security LLC. “Violence prevention and threat assessment are integral parts of corporate and government defense systems so it makes sense that we would add these services to our growing portfolio.”

Partner Profiles

Rozin Security Consulting LLC provides security consulting, training and risk assessment services to public and private companies. President Michael Rozin served in the Israeli Defense Forces as a Sergeant in a specialized combat unit. He completed the Advanced Security and Anti-Terrorism Training at Israeli Security Academy working with the Israeli Security Agency and assigned to the Israeli Airport Authority where he worked as a security agent for Ben-Gurion International Airport in Tel Aviv.

Rozin moved to the United States to serve as Special Operations Security Captain at Mall of America to enhance its counter-terrorism capabilities. He developed, implemented and managed a behavior detection unit and a variety of additional innovative security programs focused on mitigating the threat of terrorism. These award-winning programs are now internationally recognized.

Pierce-Weber Partnership LLC is the only FBI-CIA partnership between two senior retired female officers from those agencies. It provides law enforcement and intelligence insight to partners like American Security as well as training, education and consultancy services.

Co-founder Deborah Pierce served 27 years as an FBI Special Agent conducting and managing criminal and terrorism investigations. Before retiring in 2006, she served as Special Agent in Charge of the Minneapolis office and as a Deputy Assistant Director of the Criminal Division of the FBI.

Business partner Patti Weber spent 31 years in the CIA's National Clandestine Service (NCS), where as an operations officer she was engaged in the clandestine collection of human intelligence and covert action. Weber lived and worked both in the United States and abroad, specializing in Soviet and East Asian operations. When she retired in 2004, Weber was Chief of Policy for the NCS.

Together they present workshops and conduct training on various intelligence and law enforcement topics such as security when traveling abroad. They have provided consultancy services to law enforcement professionals, government agencies, schools and nonprofit organizations.

Triple Threat

The three companies will partner to help current and new clients develop proactive security programs capable of deterring and preventing acts of violence through risk assessment, behavioral recognition, threat mitigation protocols, and effective technology utilization as well as live, on site security personnel, training and education. The collaboration creates a unique suite of services that addresses prevention and response elements of clients' existing or new security program.
